RELEASE: Lung Association announces Laughs for Lungs

HALIFAX, N.S. (01/10/17) – The Lung Association of Nova Scotia (LANS) is pleased to announce Laughs for Lungs, an extraordinary night of entertainment that will feature internationally known comedians Ted Morris, Erica Sigurdson and Mike Delamont. This event is in partnership with the Halifax ComedyFest and will help raise funds for lung health in Nova Scotia.

“We are thrilled that the Halifax ComedyFest has chosen us as their charity of choice this year,” says LANS President & CEO Louis Brill. “We are looking forward to bringing people together to support our mission while having a fun time in the spirit of laughter.”

LANS is committed to helping Nova Scotians breathe better through their various health initiative programs and fundraising events. On April 26, 2017 at the Mic Mac AAC, Halifax Comedy Fest attendees will be helping to make Nova Scotia a healthier place to live and breathe. Sponsored by Premiere Entertainment Group, Laughs for Lungs is guaranteed to have you exercising your lungs while having a chuckle or a full-fledged belly laugh.

“Our hope with this partnership is that Nova Scotians will celebrate healthy lungs while at the same time helping those who suffer from a lung-related illness,” says Brill. “It is important to remember that when you can’t breathe, nothing else matters.”

Tickets cost $30 and are now available on the LANS website at www.ns.lung.ca. For more information, please call (902) 443-8141.
